CONTENTS

Contents		v
Acknowledgments		ix
Foreword by Carlo Ricci, Ph.D.		xi
INTRODUCTION		1
1	TRANSCENDING LOCAL THOUGHT	13
	Einstein Freed Himself	16
	Physics and Awareness	21
2	OPEN INQUIRY, ORGANIZING, AND DETAILING	27
	Openly Inquiring	30
	Explorations of Consciousness	34
	Imaginary Einstein-Lorentz Letters	39
3	INITIAL CONDITIONS	45
	Tiptoeing around Consciousness	48
4	BEGINNINGS	53
	Conditions for Noticing	55
	The Farther Reaches of Thought	59

5	CONFLICTING IDEAS	63
	Defining Complex Conceptions and Processes	68
6	ZEN	73
7	LEADERSHIP AND TRUST	83
	Unlearning as a Condition for Open Learning	89
8	TWELVE STEM BEHAVIORS	95
	When Precision May Waste Energy	97
	Tactics for Using Mind Opening	102
	About Mind Opening	103
	Distinguishing Between Concepts and The Process by which Concepts are Related	105
9	GENERATING WONDER AND CURIOSITY	107
	From Either/Or to Both/And	115
	One Way To Begin Teaching Teachers	116
	Another Way—Doane's Class	118
10	WANDERINGS OF A CALF	125
11	ZEN AND AN EINSTEINIAN MIND OPENER	131
	Awareness	133
	More on Zen	137
	Discontinuities and Continuities: Stages of (nonstage) Zen	139
	Insight Generation	142
	Measuring with fMRI and EEG	143
12	WHAT CAN BE SAID (ABOUT WHAT CAN'T BE SAID)	145
	Questions About Zen	146
	Einstein's Transcending	152
	Universal Silence = A Silent Universe	153
13	AN INQUIRER ASKS ABOUT WAYS OF THE WAY	157
	Trained But Uneducated — Many Thats, Few Hows	158
	The Wisdom of Self-Direction	160
	Immeasurables	161
	Trivial Learning	164
	The Plague Of Presumptuous Educators	166
	Physics, Beyond Physics, and "Now"	172
	You are Your Own Oracle	177

14 WHOLE PARTS 185
Einsteinian Uncertainties 188
"Nothing" Is "In" (Or Out) 201

Appendix 215
Notes 219
References 231
Index 237