NOETICS

The SCIENCE of THINKING and KNOWING

LAWRENCE KRADER

CYRIL LEVITT, EDITOR

Contents

Acknowledgments ix
Editor's Preface xi
Editor's Introduction xxv
Noetics and the Scientific Revolution of the 20th Century xxvii
The Human Order of Nature xxix
Evolution of Homo Sapiens and Human Development . . xxxiii
Self-Knowledge and Thinking about the Self xxxvii
Speculation and Architectonic, Art and Literature xxxviii
Language, Linguistics and Semantics xxxix
Noetics and Neuroscience xliii
Thinking and Computation, Noesis and Aesthesis xlvi
Durkheim on the Social, Weber on Value xlviii
Identity, Persona, Self xlix
Obiter Dicta lii
Preface lv
Introduction: On Intellection and the Intellectuals lvii

Part I: Noetic Science 1
The Science of Noetics 1
Thinking and Knowing, Thought and Knowledge 18
The Determination of Thinking and Knowing 30
Noetics and Human Learning. The Example of Chess . . . 39
On Wisdom, Knowledge, Thought, and Doubt 43
On Mental Economy 44
Information and Knowledge 48
Mental Capacities 51
Mind and Consciousness 55
Noetic Science. Principles 69
Noetics, General and Particular 80
Dyads 87
Speculative Architectonic 151
The Sources of Noetic Science. System of Nature and Mind 157
On What Is Said and Left Unsaid in Thought 171
Prehistory and History of Noetics 186

On Skill and Instrument, Techne and Organon 198
On Method of Noetics 229
Noesis, Will, and Desire in Thought 242
Noetics, Philosophical Psychology and Empirical Psychology 256

Part II: On the Question of Progress in Noesis 263

Natural and Human Science 263
Taxonomic and Mathematical Science; On the Question of Progress in Philosophy 268
Science and Common Sense 270
Science, Reason, Contemplation, and Feeling 279
Science, Explanation, and Description of the World 281
A Note on History of Science, Ancient and Modern 298
The History of Science as a Problem of Noesis and of Noetics 307
External and Internal Factors in the Rise of Science 316

Part III: Philosophy of Science as a Problem of Noesis and Noetics 327

Science and Philosophy of Science as Working Out of Systems, Methods and Patterns 327
Reductionism as a Problem in Science and the Philosophy of Science 333
Argument and Logic 338
Reason and Logic 340
Reason and Enlightenment 341
Formal Laws and Substantive Principles of Thinking and Knowing 349
Psychologism, and Some Further Thoughts about Logic and Paradoxes 352
On Formal and Substantial Paradoxes; Insolubilia 358
Philosophy and Science as the Measure 359
Early Science and Ancient Society 361
Causes and Conditions of Phenomena 363
On Meaning 373
Theory of the Word 376
Relation of Speech Sounds and Meaning; Theory of the Phoneme 409

Langue, Langage, Parole 412
Internal Speech, Vocal Gestures, and Speech Treated in Therapy; Their Relation to Language 413
Signals, Signs, and Symbols 415
Speech and Writing 418
Language as Ergon and Energeia 422
Semantics and Intellection 424
Human Universals, Universal Grammar 426

Part IV: Noesis and Society 435

Noesis and Society: A. 435
Noesis and Society: B. Objectivity and Subjectivity 446
Noesis and Society. C. Civil Society 460
Noesis and Society: D. Professionalization of Knowledge . . 464
Self and Identity. Persona. Remembering and Forgetting . . 478
Velazquez and the Problem of Identity 491
Self and the Problem of Mental Structure 492
Reality and Illusion of the Self 499
The Central Governor of the Mind 504
World Views, Fictions, and Obiter Dicta 507
Zeitgeist and World View 511
The Scientific World View 517
The Anthropological World View 522
Obiter Dicta of Scientists 526
Obiter Dictum and World View of Science 529
Figurative Discourse 530
Metaphor and Catachresis 541
Human Science and Metaphor 543
Aisthesis and Noesis 549
Note on Semantics in Art History and Art Philosophy . 559
On Imitation 571
Appendix A: Archeology of Noesis Based on the Evidence of Language and Fable 583
Appendix B: Spinoza's Distinction between Internal and External Mental Processes 591
Bibliography 595

Index 611