

Contents

Foreword	7
1. Introduction	17
1.1 The subject of the book: A micro-level anthropological analysis of the informal economy	17
1.2 The research site.....	20
1.3 Research sources and methods.....	27
1.4 The theoretical and conceptual framework of the research.....	35
2. Informal livelihood strategies before the regime change	45
2.1 The institutionalization of the Soviet political dictatorship in the Hungarian settlements of Transcarpathia	45
2.2 The “popular” culture of opposition to power in the 1960s.....	60
2.2.1 Informal strategies of the bureaucratic-economic elite in the 1950s.....	62
2.2.2 Informal strategies of the bureaucratic-economic elite in the 1960s.....	74
2.2.3 The informal economic strategies of kolkhoz workers.....	77
2.3 Disciplinary practices in collective farms	91
2.3.1 Sanctions and mechanisms of punishment.....	91
2.3.2 Recognition and reward techniques: The popular culture of cooperation with the authorities in the village	107
2.3.3 The privileges of the rural economic and political elite	109
2.3.4 The privileges of kolkhoz employees: The “vanguard” of communist labor.....	115
3. Local institutions of political-ideological transformation: The politics of memory and identity before the regime change	129
3.1 The symbolic appropriation of space and the construction of the historical “past” in state socialism.....	132
3.2 Local receptions of elite discourses.....	147
4. Informal livelihood strategies before the regime change	153
4.1 The contextual (global) framework of local informal practices	154
4.2 Asset privatization and structural transformation: Capital accumulation and impoverishment in the studied villages	161
4.2.1 Accumulation of capital and impoverishment in the researched rural settlements.....	165
4.2.2 Livelihood strategies of everyday actors on the Ukrainian-Hungarian border region (international labour migration, borderland black-market activities, smuggling, and informal trade)	182

- 5. Practices of the politics of identity and memory after the regime change 221
 - 5.1 The symbolic appropriation of space and the construction of the historical “past” after the regime change 225
 - 5.2 The local reception of elite discourses 235
- 6. Summary 239
- Bibliography 247
 - Internet sources 247
 - Archival and other primary sources 248
 - References..... 251
- Appendices..... 275